

Richard J. Gray, M.D.

Lake Superior State University; College of Human Medicine at Michigan State University

Board member

Board member since 2019

Richard Gray, M.D., is chief executive officer of Mayo Clinic in Arizona, a premier destination medical center serving patients with serious or complex conditions from all 50 states and more than 70 countries each year. As part of Mayo Clinic's enterprise-wide Bold. Forward. strategy, Dr. Gray is leading the transformation of healthcare through Bold. Forward. Unbound. in Arizona, a redesign of care delivery that integrates digital innovation, virtual care, and reimagined physical spaces in support of exceptional experiences and outcomes for patients and staff.

Dr. Gray also provides executive oversight of Mayo Clinic's Center for Digital Health, which is advancing the integration of digital tools and data science to elevate patient care, empower staff, and streamline operations.

Prior to being appointed CEO in 2019, Dr. Gray practiced as a surgical oncologist and served in leadership roles in the Mayo Clinic Comprehensive Cancer Center and the Department of Surgery.

He earned degrees from Lake Superior State University and Michigan State University's College of Human Medicine and trained at Mayo Clinic and the H. Lee Moffitt Cancer Center. Dr. Gray serves on the boards of the Arizona Commerce Authority, the Arizona Hospital and Healthcare Association, and Greater Phoenix Leadership.