COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is intended to provide information on new surgical procedures such as autologous breast reconstruction as well as surgical procedures designed to treat lymphedema. A review of vascular studies will be provided in order to assist participants to safely treat the patient with multifactorial edema. Guidance will be provided on effectively treating Klippel-Trenaunay Syndrome as well as creative compression options for truncal edema. A research update will inform participants about recent advancements in the treatment of lymphedema and related disorders.

COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Upon conclusion of this program, participants should be able to:

- Evaluate the results of venous and arterial studies in order to develop a safe compression program for the patient with peripheral limb edema.
- Develop a safe treatment program for pain and limited mobility in the patient recovering from breast reconstruction involving new autologous procedures.
- Explain the process of new lymph node surgical treatments used to treat lymphedema.
- Establish a safe and effective edema reduction program in a patient with the diagnosis of Klippel-Trenaunay Syndrome.
- Apply novel and effective compression devices for challenging presentations of lymphedema.

Attendance at this Mayo course does not indicate nor guarantee competence or proficiency in the performance of any procedures which may be discussed or taught in this course.

INTENDED AUDIENCE

Healthcare professionals that treat lymphedema to include occupational therapists, physical therapists, occupational therapy assistants, physical therapy assistants, oncology nurses and physicians.
